GLOBAL SERVICES SECTOR

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, during the last half of the 20th century, the service sector became the largest and fastest-growing part of the U.S. economy. During the first half of the century, the service sector represented about 60 per cent of the economy, but by the end of the 20th century, it represented about 80 per cent.

As economy shifts from developing to developed stage, they will show more and more shift toward services. Today service sector dominates the economics of many developed nations. As countries develop the role of agriculture in the economy declines and that of services increase. (China has 44.6% GDP from service, 45.5% from industry, and 10% from agriculture). Service sectors around the globe mostly strengthened last month with Germany leading the way, although harsh winter weather put a damper on the massive U.S. non-manufacturing sector.

The services sector plays an increasingly important role in the global economy and the growth and development of countries. Services are becoming crucial in a country's development, including for the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals, such as poverty reduction and access to basic services, including education, water and health services.

- Services trade is affected by domestic regulations in force in the sectors concerned in countries. International trade in services is thus sensitive to behind the border, national regulations that affect the supply of services.
- World Bank has pointed to the higher contribution of growth in the services sector to poverty reduction than the contribution of growth in the agriculture or manufacturing sectors⁽²⁾.
- Strengthening the domestic services sector by increasing its backward and forward linkages with the primary and the secondary sectors, as well as its linkage with trade, can be an effective component of a comprehensive development strategy.

NRI DIASPORA

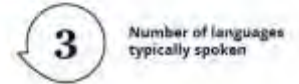

In total, there are 29.22 million Indians staying outside India which is more than the total population of many countries around the world. USA is on the list but it is an honorable mention with an ethnic Indian population of around 1%. The biggest surprise lies in the Caribbean Region. There were expectations that Kenya, Uganda, Zambia, and Zimbabwe would reveal a significant Indian population out there, but none of them meet the 1% bar. As for Europe, no other countries apart from the UK (2.3%) and The Republic of Ireland (1.9%) are reported to have an Indian population of 1%. The total NRI population was pegged at around 28 million. The US accounted for the largest proportion of NRI millionaires with a total of 133,564 or 56.5% share, followed by the UK with a 0.7% share. Other countries with a significant number of NRI millionaires include the UAE, Canada, Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia and Japan. The total wealth of NRI millionaires was estimated at some $915 billion in 2015 and is expected to reach $1.4 trillion by 2019. Remittances from NRIs are often used for investments in stocks, term deposits, land and property.
