GLOBAL EDUCATION SCENARIO

Education industry is the second-largest industry after healthcare worldwide, generating large scale revenues and employment. In 2015, the market for education was $4.9 trillion and poised to grow significantly and the market for the subset of e-learning, stands at $91 billion. US has the largest share in the global education market. According to IBIS Capital* the e-learning market is projected to grow by 23 percent between 2014 and 2017, making it the fastest-growing market in education. The market for e-learning beyond U.S. borders is serving 1.4 billion students and 62.5 million educators.

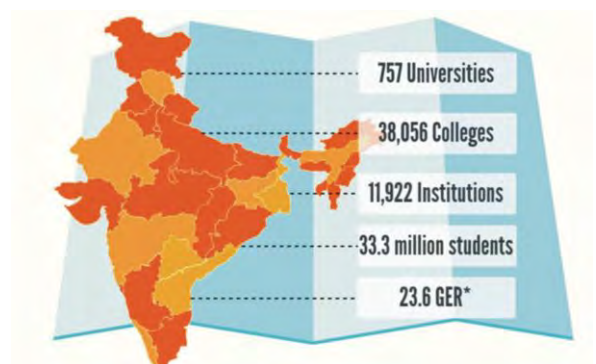

ASIAN EDUCATION SCENARIO

The education industry has experienced a rapid growth rate supported by rising awareness in developing countries (especially India & China). Higher education sector has taken a jump over the last two decades, according to estimates over three million students now study at universities outside their home countries. By 2020, the People's Republic of China alone will account for 30% of the world's university graduates between the ages of 25 and 34. India, Asia's third largest economy, is projected to add 300 million people to its workforce over the next two decades the equivalent of the entire US population.”

INDIAN EDUCATION SCENARIO

India, the second most populous country in the world with over 1.25 billion people and one of the youngest with more than 140 million between the ages of 17 and 23 years, who fall into the higher education age bracket. Globally, India has the 3rd largest education system after the United States and China, with a network of more than 1.4 million schools, 757 Universities and 49,978 Higher education Institutes.

Higher education sector witnesses spending of over US$ 6.78 billion, and it is expected to grow to reach US$ 34.12 billion in next 10 years. In e-learning segment, India has become the second largest market after the US @ US$ 2-3 billion, and is expected to touch US$ 40 billion by 2017. The education sector attracted FDI of US$ 1,256 million from April 2000 to March 2016. **
